

Have you received radiation therapy or surgery to treat prostate cancer in the past three years?

Researchers at Wake Forest Baptist Health want to learn how prostate cancer treatment affects men's ability to continue working. The information learned from the study will help men in the future be better equipped to work after receiving treatment for prostate cancer.

We are looking for men who:

- Were diagnosed with prostate cancer
- Were employed shortly before receiving treatment
- Received radiation therapy or prostate surgery in the past 3 years
- Are willing to share their experiences

You will be asked to take part in one interview. The interview will ask about your job, prostate cancer treatment, and side effects. You will receive a gift card for your time.

For more information, please contact Andy Mayfield, project manager, at 336-716-6815 or amayfiel@wakehealth.edu, or Dr. Joanne Sandberg, principal investigator, at 336-716-4308 or jsandber@wakehealth.edu.